

Loch Lomond | Rebecca Sanborn 2027

Loch Lomond

On the cusp of embarking on their 13th European tour in 2027, the ever-evolving band Loch Lomond returns — led by founder Ritchie Young alongside bandmates Rebecca Sanborn and his brother, Dustin Young.

Loch Lomond's lineup shifts fluidly from a solo act to a full seven-piece ensemble. This tour promises a rich, intimate sound featuring keyboards, bell sets, acoustic guitars, ukulele, musical saw, samples, and three-part harmonies.

The band has enjoyed prominent placements over the years, including "Wax & Wire" in a Red Bull BMX video featuring Danny MacAskill — a viral hit with 43 million streams that garnered Loch Lomond worldwide attention. Notable tours include dates with The Vaselines, The Decemberists, Peter Dinklage, and the supergroup case/lang/veirs.

Rebecca Sanborn

Rebecca Sanborn studied at the Contemporary Music Program in New Mexico. Upon returning home to Oregon, Rebecca met her husband, drummer Ji Tanzer. They are members of the jazz group, Blue Cranes, and the art pop trio, Swansea. Rebecca plays in Portland's veteran indie group Loch Lomond, and the all-female synth trio, Echo Echo Echo with Kyleen King (Brandi Carlile) and Jenny Conlee-Drizos (The Decemberists).

In 2026, Rebecca will release the album Shadow Work with the Portland Jazz Composers' Ensemble. For this ambitious project she received three grants. She is currently recording a solo record of songs for guitar.
